Subtitle Box and Date Display

Most of the templates contain two xtra text boxes to display a sub-title and the date at the top of each page. You can enter your own sub-title text from within the Layout window, keeping in mind not to give it more than one line (so that it does not overlap the date). The date does not require any editing - it is an HTML snippet that will automatically put out the correct date each day. The Slideshow & Text template does not have the xtra sub-title box, and contains the date below the slideshow. You may need to adjust the positioning of the date box if it is not spacing out properly with the text content.

This template does not contain the date box. Instead, it contains a second xtra text box below the subtitle box, for entering a one to two line description about the photo album. You can input your own description text from within the Layout window.

Slideshow & Text template

If your captions span longer than two lines, you will need to move the other slideshow elements down on the page to keep the text from overlapping the border line and slideshow area.

Contact forms utilize php code and can only be used with web hosts that support php on their servers. If you are unsure of whether or not your web server space has the required php support, contact your web host and ask them.

The Contact page contains a form that will require you to enter the email address of where you want the form info to be submitted - the mailit.php file contains the destination email address. The files for the contact form are included with the theme's downloadable zip file, contained in a folder called "contactform." From the contactform folder, select the mailit.php file. Open this php file (using a text editor such as "TextEdit"), enter the correct email address (in place of 'someone@domain.com'), save and close the file. Drag and drop the new php file into the contactform folder of ShutterBug's Files interface (under the Content window). This will replace the old file with your new one. Go to the Preview window, and hit the Send button to upload the changed php file to your server. Be sure to test your form out to make sure the info is being submitted to the correct email address.
